The new plan also focuses on reaching the poorest SC households with the idea of further increasing enrolment ratio of the community in higher education

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's new scheme lays down that the Centre will provide Rs 35,534 crore over next five years while the remaining of the Rs 50,410 crore will be given by states. Under social justice and empowerment minister Tharoor, the new funding pattern has been introduced to address the concerns of states.

The decision of the Union Cabinet to allow states to retain a portion of the scheme's financial liability following changes in the funding formula in 2017. "Today's Cabinet decision on post matric scholarship will ensure greater educational access to our daughters belonging to SC communities. Ensuring top quality and affordable education to our young is an important focus area for our government," said efforts that states should make to intensify outreach to the most deprived among SC families where students have cleared matriculation. According to estimates, around 1.36 crore poorest SC students are not enrolled in higher education because of financial problems. The central govt will seek universal coverage next year.

In a reform to buffer the scheme from leakage and fraud, the PMS funds will be deposited directly into the bank accounts of students. Presently, the money is transferred from the Centre to states which then sends it to districts and then to schools and students, Subrahmanyam said, adding that it will be done as per a defined time schedule.

The new plan also focuses on reaching the poorest SC households with the idea of further increasing the enrolment ratio of the community in higher education. A senior official said the PMS funding will be tied

In MP, girl, 12, takes selfie with noose, found hanging by siblings

Indore: A 12-year-old girl in Indore took a selfie with a noose around her neck, and was found hanging in her room an hour later by her younger siblings in Indore on Tuesday evening.

Both her parents are police personnel. Initially, when cops saw the last picture her phone they thought it was a self-portrait. On closer examination, one of the children said that the girl had taken the photo in one of her notebooks stored in her room.

Cops believe she was trying to send the selfie to someone, but couldn't find anyone. India unfortunately holds the record for the largest number of self-deaths in the world. Many campaigns have been run in recent years highlighting the toll of this seemingly innocuous act. Prime facts, this sad incident underscores the need for a much more vigorous campaign to raise awareness, especially among school kids.
